ABSTRACT

Salary data are presented for 30,667 filled full-time positions. In the tables presented, salary data are reported separately for faculty with M.D. degrees and for faculty with other doctoral degrees. Section A of the report depicts faculty salary information regardless of degree held. The first portion of this section contains such data according to the two nature-of-employment categories: strict full-time and geographic full-time. Part II of Section A details faculty salaries for all degree levels by region. The number of medical schools reported is as follows: Northeastern - 35, Southern - 31, Midwest-Great Plains - 30, Western - 15. A breakdown of schools by type of ownership appears in Part II. These tables summarize data for 45 private schools and 66 public schools. Sections B and C contain tables which depict salaries by two degree distinctions: M.D. and other doctoral. Section D provides summary tables of faculty salary data. (SPG)

INTRODUCTION

In this twelfth regular annual report, salary data are presented for 30,667 filled full-time faculty positions, as compared to 30,487 reported last year. The decrease can in large part be attributed to the elimination of affiliated faculty, house staff and fellows from this year's collection efforts which covered 111 participating medical schools. These categories of faculty were deleted because of the great variations among institutions using, paying and offering faculty rank to these individuals. Also, three fewer schools participated in the most recent survey.

This year is the first time since the Survey began that degree level information has been collected. In the tables which follow, salary data are reported separately for faculty with M.D. degrees and for faculty with other doctoral degrees. In order to preserve comparability with previous years, however, tables are also included which reflect salaries for faculty regardless of degree held.

In all, 20,461 individuals in the strict full-time (SFT) and 10,216 in the geographic full-time (GFT) category are included.* The respective totals last year were 18,774 and 8,232. In each of the five ranks the numbers of individuals have risen slightly, except for the rank of instructor. This decrease for the lowest rank is most likely due to the elimination of house staff and fellows.

Section A depicts faculty salary information regardless of degree held. The first portion of this section contains such data according to the two nature-of-employment categories - strict full-time and geographic full-time. No apparent shift from one employment category to the other can be seen in a comparison with last year's report, although there are fairly consistent growth rates for both. As in the past, faculty in the clinical sciences exhibit markedly higher salaries. This is true even when comparing SFT means for the basic sciences with the means of just the base component of GFT salaries for the clinical sciences. The base is that component of compensation which is often negotiated annually at the school and usually does not vary as a result of patient care activities.

A detailed breakdown by specialty has been omitted for some faculty classifications, e.g. geographic full-time faculty in the basic science departments, because of the small sample size. Caution should be exercised in interpreting any individual cell in the array of data when the "number" of positions is low since individual variation can have great effect on small group statistics. Where the "n" is 3 or fewer, mean and percentile data have been deleted.

Part II of Section A details faculty salaries for all degree levels by region. The number of medical schools reported is as follows (the figure in parenthesis represents the schools currently existing in that region): Northeastern - 35 (36), Southern - 31 (36), Midwest - Great Plains - 30 (31), Western - 15 (16). In general, comparison of salary by region shows that the highest compensation rates exist in the Northeast; the lowest in the South. The averages by rank do not vary by more than 10%, however. This demonstrates that salary ranges are fairly competitive across the country. This is not to say, however, that salaries are uniform between schools within a region; substantial variation does exist from one institution to the next.

A breakdown of schools by type of ownership appears in Part III. These tables summarize data for 45 private schools and 66 public schools. As in previous surveys, the data reaffirm that salary levels for private institutions exceed those for public institutions, especially at the higher ranks, where mean salaries are 15-20% greater in the clinical departments. This seems to be true both for the SFT and GFT designations.

Sections B and C contain tables which depict salaries by two degree distinctions: M.D. and other doctoral. It is apparent that in every rank those individuals holding medical degrees earn significantly higher salaries than those without the M.D. In the basic science departments, mean salaries of M.D.-holding faculty are 15-20% greater than their colleagues with other doctoral degrees. As one would expect, however, it is in the clinical departments where the greatest salary differences occur within a given rank and department as a result of the degree held, especially for those clinical departments where degrees other than the M.D. are common. For example, in departments of psychiatry, the national average SFT salary for the rank of professor is $50,900 (with M.D.) and $36,200 (with doctoral degree other than M.D.). An even more vivid illustration of the contrast occurs at the rank of assistant professor in otolaryngology where the national mean SFT salary is $45,800 (with M.D.) and $23,500 (with doctoral degree other than M.D.).

The pattern of salary growth for all faculty seems fairly consistent with last year's observations. The mean salaries for SFT faculty have risen slowly but consistently throughout all ranks. The mean base poriton of GFT salaries has increased at a steady but slower rate. The supplemental portion of the geographic full-time individual's income is often variable and subject to change as patient-generated income fluctuates. Therefore, great differences appear in this compensation element. Compensation which has supplemental components has also increased at a moderate rate, but more rapidly than those salaries not subject to such variation. The supplemental portion of total salaries tends to be quite variable in different ranks and departments, since this supplement is frequently dependent on individual practice plans. Nevertheless, the increase in total compensation since last year has ranged generally between 5% and 10%.

Last year's Report included data on the Canadian medical schools. The AAMC intends to analyze and report faculty salaries for the Canadian institutions again this year. However, the published report will be separate and available in the Spring of 1977.

Note on Computation of Percentile Statistics - The percentile statistics were calculated in the following manner: To obtain the value for the nth percentile statistic, reported salaries were counted in ascending order until the inclusion of a particular reported salary accounted for n percent or more of the reported salaries. No interpolation was performed. Those cells having n=3 or less do not have means printed in each percentile for reasons of confidentiality.

Nature of Employment Definitions

AAMC Faculty Salary Survey

The definitions of full-time salaried medical school faculty comprise the following classes of faculty:

SFT

A. Strict full-time medical school faculty are those who receive their entire professional income as a fixed annual amount from funds controlled by the medical school or its parent institution, who devote their full time to the programs of the medical school, and whose professional activities are under the direct auspices of the medical school.

GFT

B. Geographic full-time medical school faculty are those who receive a fixed salary all or most of which is paid from funds controlled by the medical school, but who may earn variable income from professional activities, who conduct all of their professional work in the institution(s) paying the fixed salary, and whose professional activities are under the direct auspices of the medical school.
